Practical Explanation (For Example) :- `1st of all can you tell me every single seconds detail from that time when you born ?? (i need every seconds detail ?? that what- what you have thought and done on every single second) can you tell me every single detail of your `1 cheapest Minute Or your whole hour, day, week, month, year or your whole life ??

if you are not able to tell me about this life then what proof do you have that you didn't forget your past ? and that you will not forget this present life in the future ?

that is Fact that Supreme Lord Krishna exists but we posses no such intelligence to understand him. there is also next life. and i already proved you that no scientist, no politician, no so-called intelligent man in this world is able to understand this Truth. cuz they are imagining. and you cannot imagine what is god, who is god, what is after life etc.

for example :Your father existed before your birth. you cannot say that before your birth your father don,t exists.

So you have to ask from mother, "Who is my father?" And if she says, "This gentleman is your father," then it is all right. It is easy. Otherwise, if you makes research, "Who is my father?" go on searching for life; you'll never find your father.

(now maybe...maybe you will say that i will search my father from D.N.A, or i will prove it by photo's, or many other thing's which i will get from my mother and prove it that who is my Real father.{ So you have to believe the authority. who is that authority ? she is your mother. you cannot claim of any photo's, D.N.A or many other things without authority (or ur mother).

if you will show D.N.A, photo's, and many other proofs from other women then your mother. then what is

PEOPLE ARE STUPID.

HEY STUPID, WHY YOU ASK FOR QUESTION AND THEN SAY YOU FOUND THE ANSWER AND THEN YOU DON´T SHARE THE ANSWER? YOU WANT ME TO RIP YOUR ORGANS OUT AND STOMP ON YOUR HEAD?

Make online payments anonymously?

Is there a service/company which allows you to make anonymous payments online ?

This is how i want the service to work - Just like a credit/debit card. When you make the payment online, instead of entering your real name and real address, you enter the name-code and address-code issued to you by the service. To the receiver of the payment, it should appear as if the payment came from the service and not you.

If such a service does not exist, then is there any similar alternative ? I had a quick look at escrow. But not sure if enables one to pay anonymously.

Why I want this service ? I think that the receiver of my payment gets to see my personal info when i enter it in their website to make a payment. I don't want that to happen.

Atletico Madrid v Rayo Vallecano: La Liga preview and live streaming After demolishing Levante 7-0 in their opening game of the new La Liga campaign, Barcelona have continued the devastating domestic form that saw them crowned champions last season.

The match, which was Gerardo Martino's first competitive game in charge since taking the reigns this summer, saw Barca take an astonishing 6-0 lead by half-time.

Goals from Lionel Messi (two), Pedro (two), Alexis Sanchez, Dani Alves and Xavi secured the most comfortable of victories for Martino's men, leaving them top of the table after the first round of fixtures.

Brazilian superstar Neymar, who joined the club from Santos for £50 million this summer, did not start the game but came off the bench to make his debut.

Watch Buffalo Bills vs Washington Redskins Live Stream

Buffalo Bills vs Washington Redskins takes place on Saturday afternoon in the NFL Preseason 2013 calendar, with the Bills looking to maintain their perfect start in preparation for the regular season in September. The game will start at 4.30 p.m. ET and can be watched online through free live stream (details below).

The Bills have looked impressive so far this preseason. On Aug. 11 they traveled to Indianapolis where they put on a devastating performance to wipe out Indianapolis 44-20.

They did have a much closer affair last week when they hosted Minnesota, but they still managed to come out on top 20-16 to place their preseason record at 2-0. They now travel to Washington to face a very skilled Redskins team hoping to make it three straight wins and continue their march to the start of the season.

Over the past two games the AFC East Bills have been one of the most devastating teams on the offensive, scoring an average of 32 points per game, placing them 3rd in the NFL for points scored. Much of that success has come from their powerful rushing offense, where they have averaged 154.5 yards over the two games.

Arsenal will attempt to continue the forward momentum from their midweek demolition of Fenerbahce into a crucial match against Fulham at Craven Cottage.

It might seem strange to treat the second game of the Premier League season with such stark immediacy, but the Gunners dropped three perfectly winnable points against Aston Villa last weekend, and any further disappointments will only make Arsene Wenger's transfer business (such as it is) more difficult.Arsenal's players are already under a tremendous amount of pressure to perform, despite the inability of the club's executives to do obviously necessary transfer business. Due to Laurent Koscielny's suspension, they will play with one centre-back.However, when the match begins and the Gunners are forced to contend with a very threatening Fulham side, all external chatter will probably recede behind the stadium's walls.The game commences at 7:45 am

Pointing to the badge on his tracksuit top, he said: “It’s white but it’s Chelsea. If you want questions about Chelsea, I’m here. If you want questions about Real Madrid and Barcelona, I’m not here. It’s not about me and Pep. It’s about Chelsea and Bayern Munich. It’s about a Super Cup where the European champions are playing the Europa League champions.”

Guardiola took a similar view – “the reason we’re here is for the players, not the coaches” – but did reveal that he would eventually like to join Mourinho in the Premier League. “I am a young trainer at 42,” said Guardiola. “I would like to go to England but in a few years. I would like, first of all, to remain as long as possible at this club. After that, I’d like to live this experience but it’s fantasy football. It’s fantasy right now.”

And what about Chelsea? It is common knowledge that Guardiola was courted by Roman Abramovich, the Chelsea owner, while at Barcelona and then again during his one-year sabbatical from football.

Justin Timberlake is also slated to perform at tomorrow's award show, and it has just been confirmed that he will be reuniting onstage with his former boyband group NSync.

Former NSync member Joey Fatone's father has confirmed a reunion, saying that his son and Justin Timberlake, Lance Bass, JC Chasez and Chris Kirkpatrick are set to reunite for the show. Joseph Fatone Sr told RadarOnline: "They're doing a performance. I think it's exciting. I couldn't even say why he's doing it though. Why, at this point in his life. Now he's his own man. But it's more to the fact that MTV has made them all somewhat of stars, and also made Justin a star."

Timberlake will be presented with the Michael Jackson Vanguard Award. Past recipients of the award include Michael Jackson himself, Madonna, R.E.M., and the Beastie Boys.

Katy Perry, who has not performed at the MTV VMA's since 2009, will also perform at the award show with her first single "Roar" from her upcoming album "Prism", which will be released Oct. 22.

Maxing out gear with maxed out smithing, enchanting and alchemy

~~That glitch you used is still available and can be used..but what you should do is wear fortify alchemy equipment, make the fortify restoration potion, drink, unequip/equip clothing, repeat till your gear is ridiculously high, fortify alchemy, then make a fortify enchanting potion and set enchantments on other equipment~~.

Bad updates for Windows 7

No, they won't.

First, it would be easy for professionals to find out what they are doing and that would be really bad for their image.

Second, if my current Microsoft OS doesn't work as I expect it to work, I wouldn't pay them for the next one - I'd just go for their competitor's one, especially one I can use for free - like Ubuntu, Fedora, Mint and many other Linux distros.

What is the most secure operating system out there? [on hold]

Unfortunately, endpoint security is so terrifically weak that NSA can frequently find ways around it. -Edward Snowden

Would it be safe to assume that every popular linux distro out there has a backdoor in it that got there by people connected to US intelligence?

I think probably most of them yes, purely logically speaking that is, though I also immediately logically assume that these are kept secret from even private intelligence contractors like Stratfor and that only highest levels in US intelligence have access to them and only as last resort for only important matters as it risks the backdoor being discovered.

In other words I assume rich people can't buy access to such backdoors or their data.

Following that logic... what OS's or linux distro's are safe, not from high level US intelligence, but from leaking to the rest of the world from lower clearance US Int. and Hackers?

A good example being free of vulnerabilities whose data collection has low clearance within US intelligence, which is accessed and leaked potentially too easily trough their incompetent contractors as pointed out by Edward Snowden among his reasons to reveal prism.

The purpose is for receiving, sending and storing mail on a mini laptop that will only be used for that purpose and perhaps also used to boot Lightweight Portable Security (LPS) to access only paypal.com and my bank's website.

You better specify this ^ article like a start point with Edward's opinion.

If you discovery OS's, not a Linux's different distributives, cause kernel (kernel.org) is one, and it is OS Linux only, other staff like, Debian or Slackware, Gentoo or RedHat, is only wrapper of binaries and scripts around this costly project, called kernel.

You can observe OpenBSD project(Canada) and their requirements for cryptography developers. They looking for cryptographers from any country, but USA.

Restrictions on cryptography distribution is very hard everywhere and it is draconian in the Country Of Liberty.

Should StackOverflow run a programmers' matrimonial service to prevent marriage-fraud? [closed]

My question may seem a little odd and long,but my grievance is genuine.And I hope the top-moderators and owners of StackOverflow would consider it.This is related to StackOverflow but not a direct programming-related question.I posted it in Meta but seems like people are not available there to answer at the moment.So posting it again here.

I am a programmer from India working for Infosys,Hosur Road,Bangalore.Recently,I came across a disturbing incident that puts the reputation of the entire programmers' community at stake,irrespective of nationality,especially in the context of marriage.Here are the details:

The 21 year old daughter of my neighbor,who was studying in New Delhi fell in love with a self-professed Java programmer who claimed to work for IBM-India and that he was assigned to a Telecom project for AT&T.Since the girl insisted on marrying him,her parents had to relent.The little doubt they had about the guy was laid to rest when someone from the family followed the guy to the IBM office and indeed noticed the security staff at the main gate let him in (In India employees have to show a security pass to enter).

But after 5 months after the marriage, when it was long consummated,it was discovered (by a new recruit to the same office) that the groom was only a tea/coffee stall owner in the IBM compound.The parents of the girls went into depression and mental trauma as they had spent Rs 25 lakhs($75,000) in cash as dowry,along with a Chevrolet hatchback car and other items.

So shouldn't StackOverflow start a trusted matrimonial site,especially for traditional Asian societies like India,China and Korea,where only genuine programmers can put up their profile? What if tomorrow another unscrupulous Indian or Chinese guy living in USA claims to be silicon valley big-shot back in Mumbai or Shanghai to cheat some innocent Indian or Chinese girl?And with the recent trend of people marrying other nationalities, what if a white American guy goes to China or India and claims to gullible girls that he develops software for NASA space missions,but in reality is a welfare-bum from California or a jobless Democrat from Michigan?

Please answer my question and give your views.I shall be very grateful to you.Let's not let dubious people slander the reputation of us programmers.

PS I apologize I have to post this question with an alias,not my real StackExchange account,out of concern for privacy of the victim and her family.

Do American women find it offensive, if a European man says that

An American (US born) woman with a Italian born mother told me that 90 percent of Australian and American women are a piece of crap. She told me that Australian women are as bad as American women. Some people would say that Australian women are worse than American women, but I can't verify this. She became a naturalized Australian citizen before she moved back to the United States. She has a better relationship with her mother than most American women have and is better behaved than most American women. She also has a very good relationship with her American father because her Italian mother is still married to her American father. This is very common among American woman who are raised by European mothers (this is more common than you think).

I have seen a US born women that was raised by an Italian born women that is a piece of crap, according to the same American women that became a naturalized Australian citizen before she moved back to the United States and could not live in Europe with her behavior and mentality. Normally she should have the skill to live in Europe but there are some women (that are born in the United States) that have a European born mother that can't do that.

An Italian born mother told me that, ninety percent of American women can not be trusted (can not properly present them selves abroad). Ninety percent of European women (for example, Belgian, Italian and Swedish) can be trusted and properly present them selves abroad. An Italian man was aware of this since the late 1960s (the time of the Beatles) because his parents explained to him almost 45 years ago. That is what he told me. Most US born women who are raised by a European born mother can be equally be trusted as their European born mother and should have the skills to live in Europe. They generally have a better relationship with their European born mother and grand mother, and are better behaved than most American women and men who are raised by American mothers. The first and sometimes second generation should see no American influence. Amanda Leigh "Mandy" Moore (born April 10, 1984) is a primarily example of this, with her English-born maternal grandmother. They can normally be equally trusted as their European born mother and grand mother. That is what the same Italian born women told me. There are always exceptions to the rules.

You also have to be very careful with women in Australia, Canada, New Zeeland and the United Kingdom. Those countries have copied the same corrupt, family court and child support system as the United States. You have to follow the same rules regarding women Australia, Britain, Canada, and New Zeeland. The percentage could be different in Britain, Canada and New Zeeland, than in the Australian and the United States. I do not know the percentage for Britain, Canada and New Zeeland.

(CBS/AP) Fear of childhood vaccinations has some parents paying to have a stranger send lollipops and other items purportedly licked by kids with chickenpox, but a federal prosecutor says that in addition to being a bad idea, it's illegal.

Jerry Martin, U.S. attorney for the Middle District of Tennessee, made the comments after hearing reports this week from KPHO-TV in Phoenix and WSMV-TV in Nashville about people turning to Facebook to find lollipops, spit or other items from kids who have chickenpox.

"Can you imagine getting a package in the mail from this complete stranger that you know from Facebook because you joined a group, and say here, drink this purported

Dynamic picture that displays the visitors IP address?

I see this a lot now, jpg files displaying your IP address. To you of course, not to others, they would see their own

For example:

How is this even possible? If this is possible, would it be possible to log an IP into a MySQL database from the picture as well? Is my IP getting logged when I view this?

EDIT: Sure, its possible when its on your OWN server, but how would you log it from directly linking a picture from your server on a nother, such as I've done here?

How to protect from privacy problem in the chat? [duplicate]

Possible Duplicate:
Chat ip number + time disclosure

In stack exchange chat Andrew Smith pointed out a possible privacy vulnerability: If you post an image there it is loaded automatically by everyone else. So if you use an image you have access logs for you can see what IP addresses there are. So that means IP addresses would be able to be viewed by more than just moderators.

Is there any way to protect against it in there?

Chat ip number + time disclosure [closed]

This picture can be pasted to chat or posted on forum, and it can track users, by their timings on chat. So I can see person coming at 12:00:00 and I have it logged it's ip number, company name etc.

This is completely wrong for a chat which is on the public internet, or I am missing something.

Check it out yourself, this is your ip number:

Rendering bug crashes OS X, iOS apps with string of Arabic characters (Updated)

CoreText bug crashes any iOS 6 and OS X programs that use the API.

by Andrew Cunningham and Dan Goodin Aug 29 2013, 10:30pm +0300

IOS & IDEVICES OS X 149

This nonsensical string of Arabic characters renders fine in Firefox, but it crashes any iOS or OS X browser that uses Apple's CoreText API.

Andrew Cunningham

There's a new bug in town, and it's here to crash your Mac and iPhone applications. Posters in a HackerNews thread from late yesterday have discovered that it's possible to crash Web browsers and other apps running on current versions of iOS and OS X by making them render a specific, nonsensical string of Arabic characters. The title of the HackerNews thread implies that the issue is with the WebKit browser engine, but it actually affects any browser or application that uses Apple's CoreText API to render text. Ars Microsoft Editor Peter Bright has taken great pleasure in sending the text string to his co-workers, which has crashed the Limechat IRC client and Adium chat client, among other programs.

Safari crashes in both OS X 10.8.4 and iOS 6.1.3 when it attempts to read the text string, and rendering the string in the current stable release of Chrome prompts the browser's typical "Aw snap!" error page (though Chrome's sandboxing implementation keeps the bug from bringing the whole browser down). Firefox, which uses its own font rendering engine, can display the text just fine. This supports the idea that it's a CoreText issue and not a problem with any particular application.

2 Why do trolls troll this gorgeous site? – Simon Aug 14 at 3:04
4 Probably, you've mistaken this for a discussion forum. It isn't and so your trolling is trolling. Ask an on-topic question, contribute an on-topic useful answer, don't spam. The rest belongs in /alt/dev/null where digital oblivion prevails. – Fiasco Labs Aug 14 at 3:48
Please refrain yourself from using offensive language and flaming other members and moderators. I've edited out abusive parts of your post, flagged it as unwelcome in our community, and voted to close. No migration! This wouldn't belong even in a zoo! You're advised to get to grips and respect the rules of this community. If that's not to your liking, then I suggest you find your amusement elsewhere. Disruptive behavior will not be tolerated, and the community has means to deny you further access to this website by other means as well. Please, take note and thanks for your understanding! – TildalWave Aug 14 at 4:26
